

Sinclair
Broadcasting's
decision to force
their stations to
air an anti-Kerry
documentary days
before the election
is a clear example
of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the
public airwaves free
of charge, and is
obligated by law to serve the public interest. Instead of something demanded
to be aired by the owner, it's important that we see real people from
our own communities
and more substantive
news about issues
that matter.

Sinclair's actions
show why we need to strengthen media
ownership rules, not weaken them. The license renewal
process needs to involve more than a
returned postcard.
Thank you.
